is for Quest for Perfection

As the number of aesthetic procedures performed each year in the United States crosses the one-million-served mark, you'd be forgiven for thinking the world had finally taken the old adage "beauty is skin deep" to heart. Not so, says Barbara Polla, the celebrated Swiss physician, politician, and art curator who has just added a line of skincare, Forever Choice, to her long list of achievements. At her Forever Laser Institut in Geneva, a contemporary-art gallery shares space with ultramodern dermatology facilities. Back in the States, there's a growing number of plastic surgeons exploring such creative pursuits. "If you see something they've painted, it will inspire confidence in their aesthetic sense," explains plastic-surgery consultant Wendy Lewis. Surgeons who paint include New York's Gregory LaTrenta, M.D., David Hidalgo, M.D., and Jane Haher, M.D. See Buyline for details.
